Looking Back On Flushing's Birthday

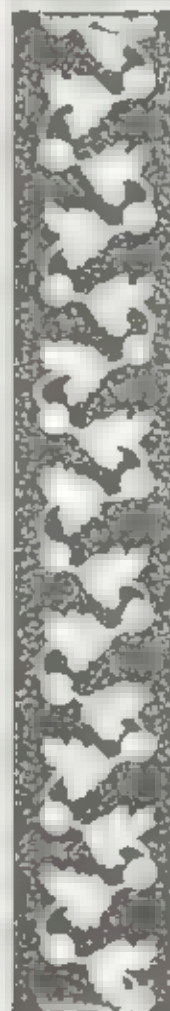

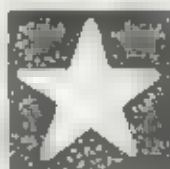

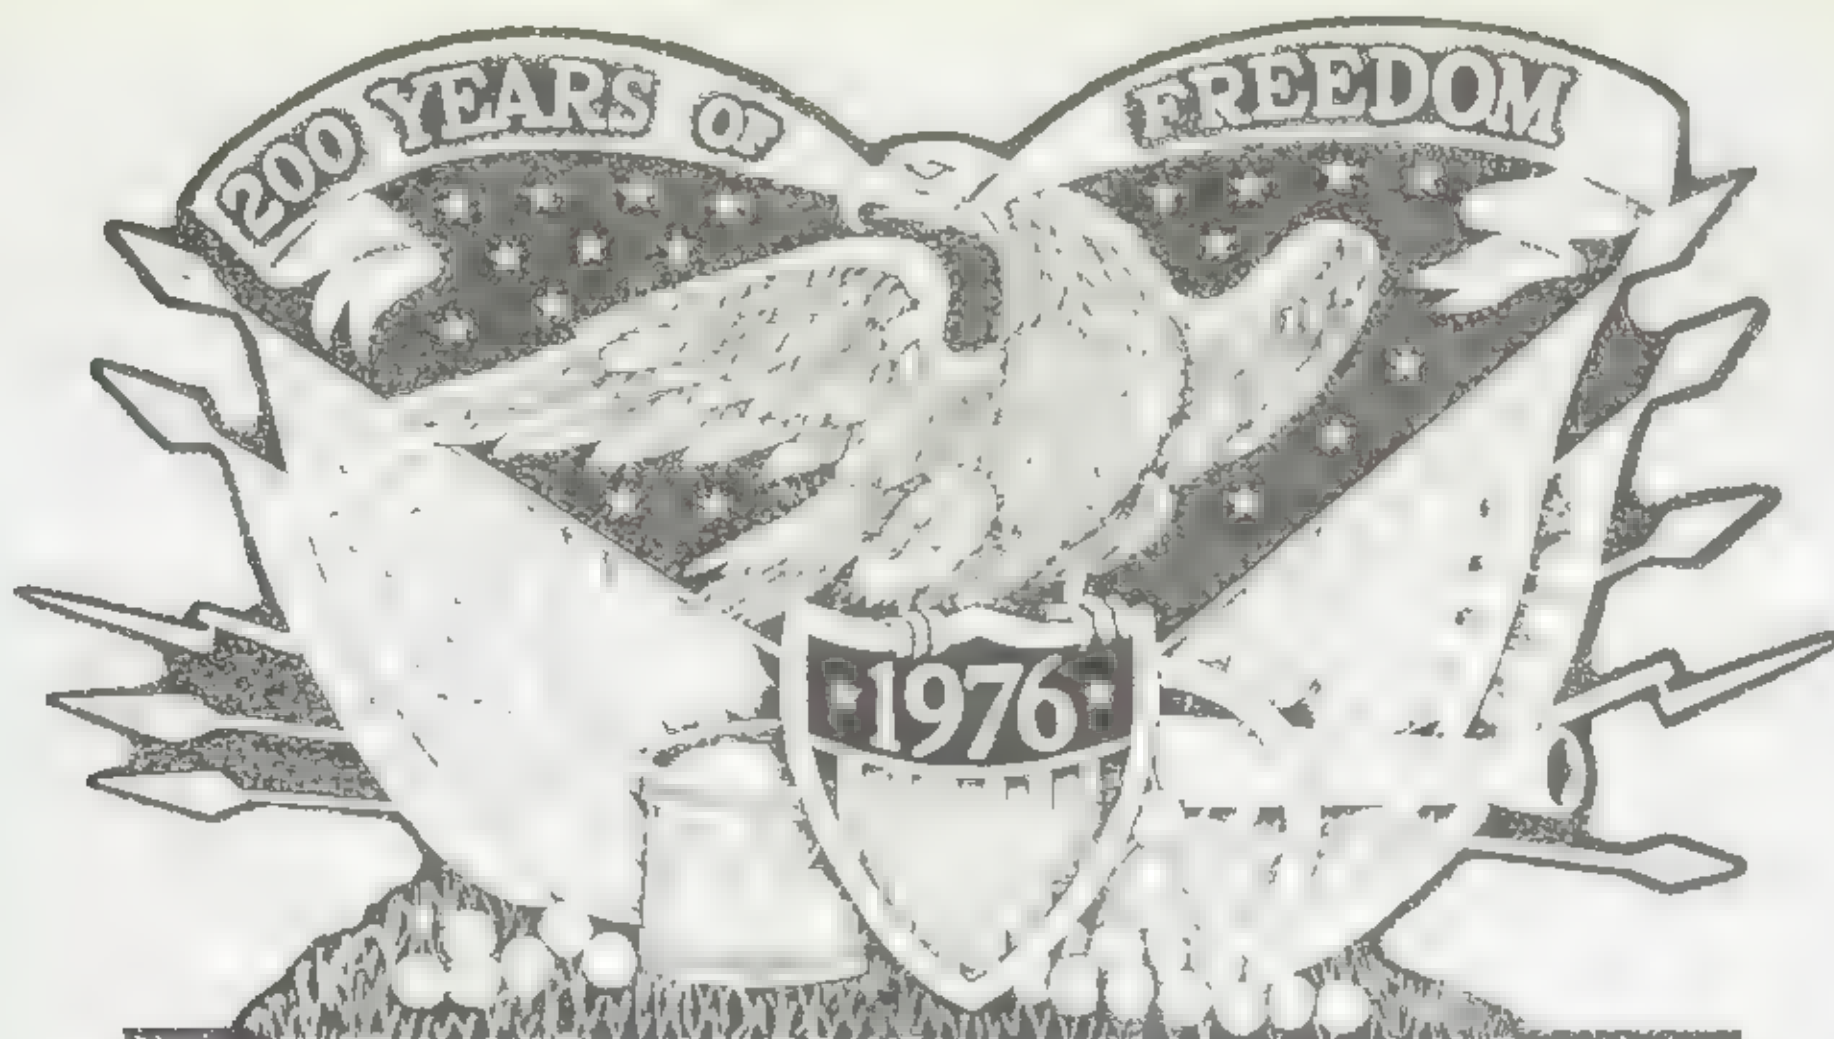

Mrs. Lois Miller, Centennial Coordinator, organized events to honor Flushing High School's Centennial. Though trying to stimulate student participation, apathy prevailed and pupil representation in most of the events were slim. The first centennial event, the Open House, was the most widely attended. With admission being free, the activity included exhibits, and shows performed by students representing the diverse clubs and organizations in Flushing High School. Encouraged by the success of the Open House, events such as the Alumni-Student basketball game and the Alumni-Student Spring Concert following.

The New York Yankees sponsored a "Flushing High School Night" at Shea Stadium. The festivities included a performance by Flushing's band and cheerleaders, the presentation of the Yankee Scholarship to F.H.S. students Grace Peng and Linda Moore, and speeches made by Flushing's faculty.

ADMINISTRATION

Principal's Message

Dear Students,

The Class of '76 is unique since two hundred years of our nation's history have passed by and you are an integral part of this significant celebration

What is the message of the Bi-centennial year? Those imbued with the spirit of '76 expect us to develop an appreciation of what has happened to our nation since the American Revolution and to make the ideals of the Declaration of Independence truly apply to all people, regardless of race, creed, color, age, sex, religion or ethnic origin. That these are not realities as yet but still ideals must not permit opponents to these precepts deter us from our goals

The poet, Frederick Langbridge, once wrote: "Two men looked out through the same sight, one saw the mud, one saw the stars." The tragedy of modern America is that many have looked so long at the mud that they have forgotten that the stars do shine. Terms like freedom, democracy, morality, human dignity and civil rights may have gotten fuzzy with time, misuse and disuse but the two hundredth birthday of our nation provides the occasion to reflect upon those principles that have shaped our nation's beginnings and to reaffirm our faith in these promises.

Each graduating class, in thinking of the past along with the future, experiences mixed emotions. There is an element of sadness and nostalgia in leaving old friends and familiar surroundings and yet there is also pleasure and satisfaction in the feeling that you have attained many goals and that you are prepared mentally, emotionally, physically, and socially to go on to new challenges

If you are at all like those who have preceded you, I know you will look back upon your days at Flushing High School with fondness and joy. Consistent with the Bi-centennial theme, we have fulfilled our responsibilities to you if, reflected in your future lives, in your personal, vocational and civic activities, there exists a love of learning, an appreciation for freedom and morality, a regard for human dignity, and a respect for our American heritage

It has been a pleasure to have shared these exciting years with you, and may I offer my sincere best wishes for your continuing health, happiness and success

Secretarial Studies

"Most Definitely"

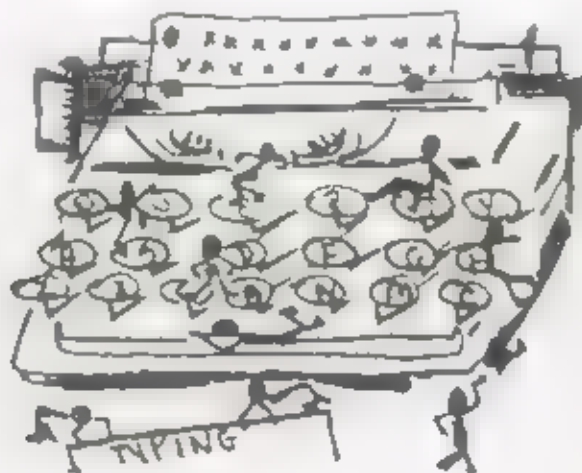

Is teaching a challenge to Jill Paskal, member of the secretarial studies department and alumni of Flushing High School

"Most definitely yes!" she replied with a quick easy laugh. "I find my students very inquisitive and interested in learning. It is a challenge because you have to know what the students are feeling in order to keep them interested

Going on her sixth year of teaching at Flushing High School, Mrs. Paskal had to admit that "it goes by very quickly. You feel like you are back again in high school

Although Mrs. Paskal was always interested in teaching as a career, she wasn't sure in exactly what subject. "I always liked small children," she explained, brushing back a strand of unruly hair, "and I wanted to teach in elementary school." However, when she began high school, she took typing and stenography at the suggestion of her parents and friends. "From then on, I knew that that was what I wanted to do," she added enthusiastically

Mrs. Paskal's many outside interests include tennis and cooking. "I love to make some wild dishes!" She also enjoys gardening, bowling and the theater

Edwin Cohen

"I Love It"

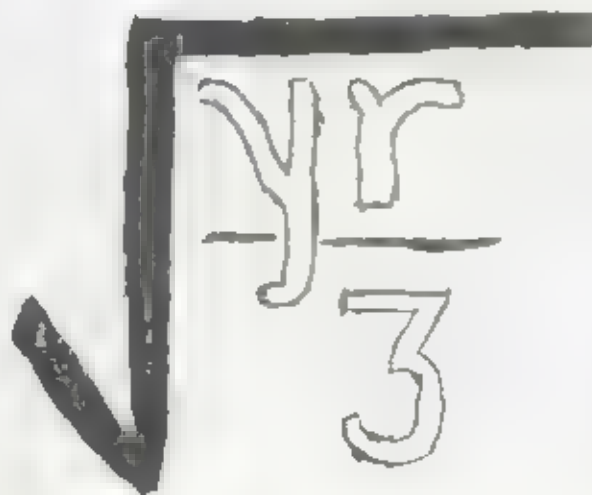

"A math class doesn't have to be 40 minutes of torture" explained Mr. Edwin Cohen, describing the comfortable atmosphere he creates in his classes.

A teacher for 13 years, Mr. Cohen likes to link math with life. "I hope my students learn something about life in the classroom. By studying math, a student can look into the secrets of the universe."

After a disenchanting first year of calculus in college, Mr. Cohen's thoughts of math as a career virtually diminished. He bounced back, however, and graduated with a B.A. from Brooklyn College. "Actually the subject (math) picked me." Lack of inclination in any other area led him to teaching.

Mr. Cohen spends a lot of time working with the Junior and Senior Math Teams. He also spends many hours planning lessons for his advanced placement classes. He feels teaching A.P. is a challenge and openly admits "I love it."

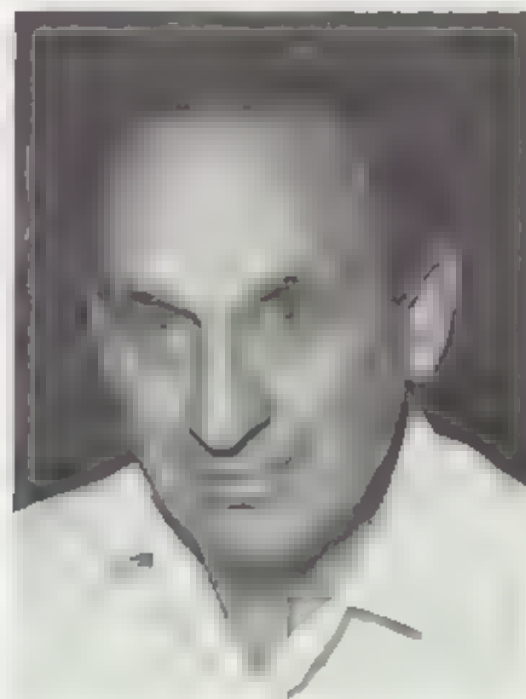

At home Mr. Cohen enjoys a relaxing evening watching T.V., "One thing that I love to do is watch Monty Python on television. I must have seen every segment." On weekends he can be seen watching his wife do the gardening and "working out weird math problems."

Mary Brown Dies

Mrs. Mary Brown, Home Economics teacher at FHS for 11 years, died of cancer on Nov. 21 at Meadowbrook Hospital, Meadowbrook, Long Island

Mrs. Brown taught Home Economics, including the popular electives, Child Psychology and Teen Fashion, up to the beginning of her illness this fall. In 1971, Mrs. Brown conducted a Bd of Ed. series on Sex Education on TV Channel 13

Mrs. Brown spent the early part of her life in Lumberton, N.C., later moving to Raleigh, N.C., where she received her Bachelor of Science degree at Shaw University in 1947

Mrs. Brown traveled to New York to continue her studies at Hunter College where she earned her masters degree in Home Economics

Mrs. Brown's first professional position was as a teacher at Showtown H.S. in Lillington, N.C. She later served as Head Dietician at Kings County Hospital, Brooklyn, N.Y. Her love for Children, however, led her to return to education. Mrs. Brown taught at several city schools before coming to FHS in Sept. 1964.

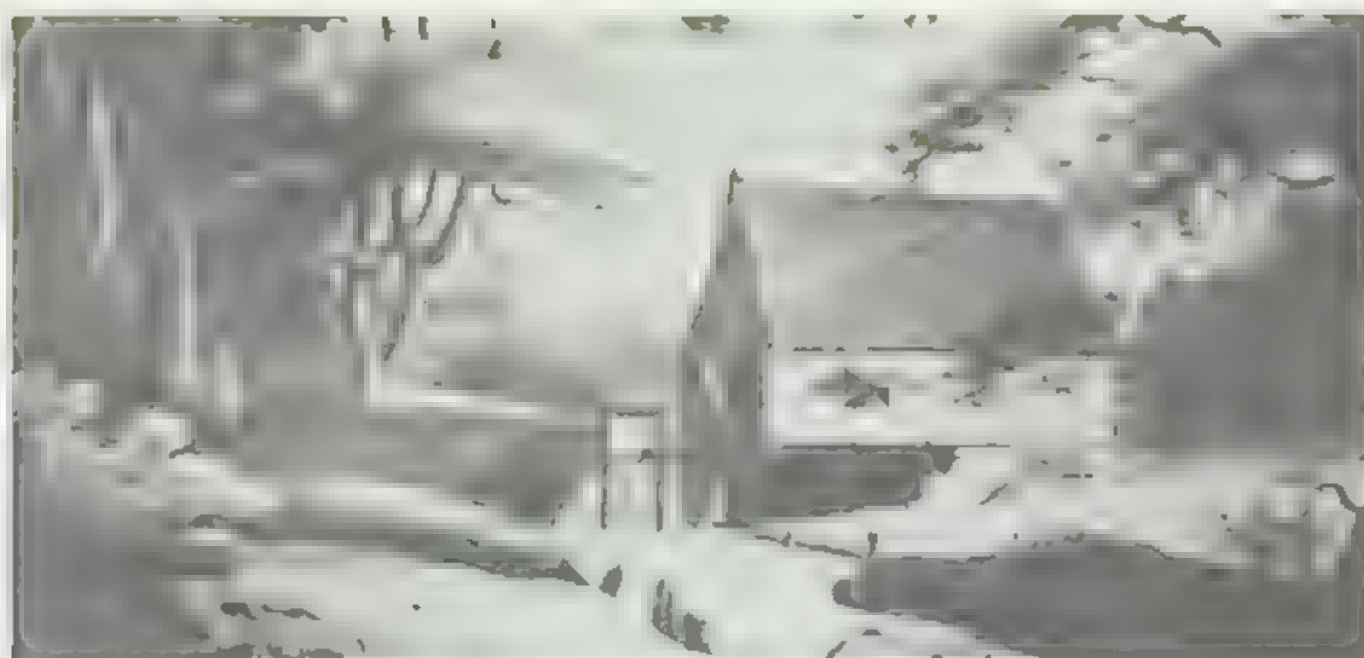

"She was a warm, dedicated teacher whose genuine concern enabled her to have a close rapport with students," remarked Mrs. Sylvia Scharfstein, Home Economics Dept. supervisor

Colonial Flushing

As you walk around the halls of Flushing High School, you will often hear a student gripe, "this school is falling apart!" Well, surely the same complaint could have been aired two hundred years ago in colonial days, too.

Then, the school houses were small, plain buildings. They were not painted outside or inside; nor were the walls sealed or plastered. This caused water and dampness to seep in. In winter-time, a Dutch wood-burning stove was used to raise the temperature in the building somewhat above the freezing point. Maybe we should try that method of heating in Flushing High — anything would be an improvement.

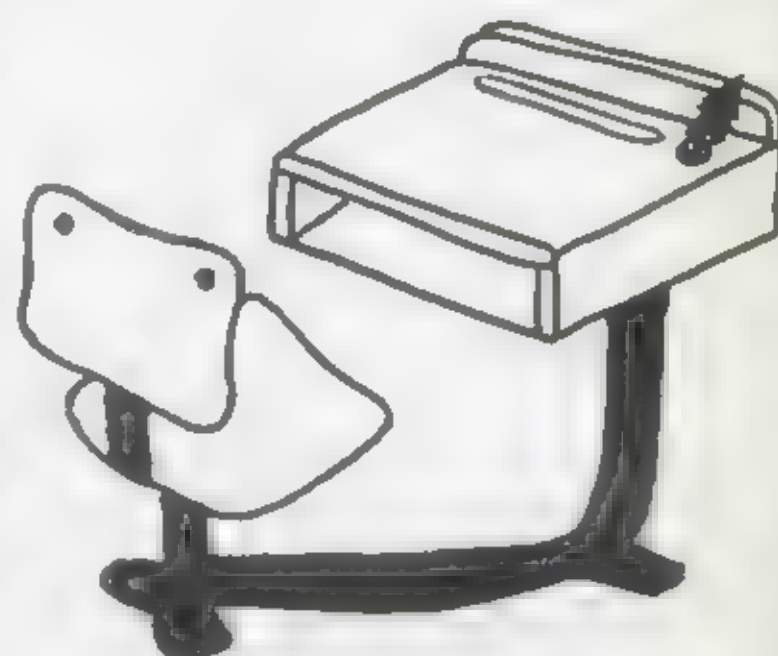

The girls swept the school room once a week and occasionally scrubbed it. At these times, the boys assisted by carrying the water. The older boys cut firewood and the younger boys carried the wood in. As you can see, there was a pretty fair division of labor. The first pupil to arrive in the morning started the fire.

The schoolmasters were generally single men. They were paid 25 cents a day and would go from one school to another.

Back then, there were no luxuries such as readymade writing books or ruled paper. The schoolmaster made and mended the quill pens, and ruled the paper for writing with a piece of lead. Ink was made by mixing Walkdens ink powder with vinegar and water.

In those days, they did not spare the rod. Blue cards were unheard of and so were security guards. So the schoolmaster kept order with his hickory stick.

His small breeches came scarcely to his knees, his stockings were striped; his shoes were pointed and fastened with large buckles. His vest had big flap pockets, and his cuffs were loaded with lead. Halloween? Indeed not. This well dressed, super-fine dude just stepped out of colonial Flushing.

Her gown of heavy brocade or taffeta was spread over huge hoops which extended two feet on each side. She was wearing a musk melon bonnet. Little Miss Muffet you say? Wrong again. This fair damsel also accompanied the man on his long journey from colonial Flushing to now.

The everyday work clothes worn by the farmers were made from "homespun." His one good suit, which he wore on Sundays and holidays, was made of broadcloth. The farmers back then were simple men. They lived in unpainted houses without carpets. The food was simple and might consist of fish, corn squash, rabbit, etc.

The laborers wore a pair of yellow buckskin or leather breeches, checked shirts, flannel jackets, rusty felt hats with upturned corners and leather aprons. They also wore heavy shoes with large brass buckles.

Clothes like these examples are hard to find today. Not even Saks Fifth Avenue carries them.

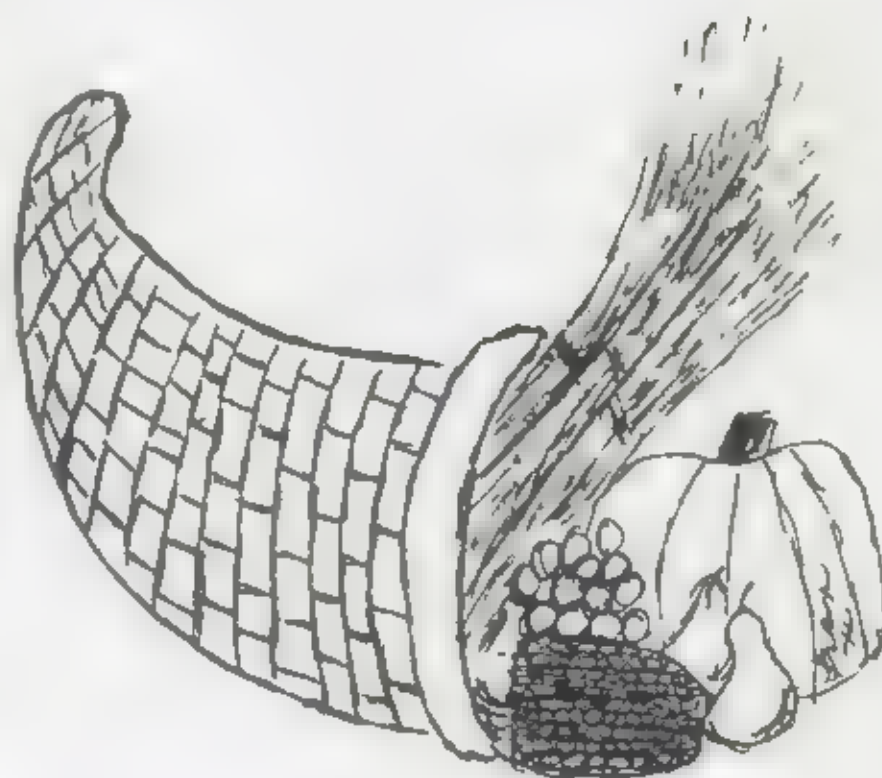

Fashionable gentlemen on their way to a Tupperware Party

Hungry at the end of the school day? Why not treat yourself to some squirrel pie, boiled pond lily roots, and roasted pidgeon with boiled hickory nuts. Doubtful that even Euell Gibbon's, natural food nut that he was, would've cared much for that menu.

Nevertheless, that was some of the food which was introduced by the Indians to the white man and became the life sustaining diet to the early settlers.

It was the Indian who first showed us what corn was and how to use it. This was probably the most important food to the settlers who didn't know yet how to cope with the rugged wilderness life. Corn was given different names because of the various Indian dialects. But no matter how different, all the names meant the same, "Our Life."

The Indians used the foods around them wisely and for as many useful purposes as possible. From the forests came a great supply of nuts, a nutritional food supply: (chestnuts, hickory, black walnut, white walnut, chinquapin, beechnut and acorns). These were eaten out of the shell, roasted or broken up to be added to bread. It gave extra flavor to succotash and other spoon meats. But nuts also served another need. The Indians had no domestic animals (like cows and goats) so they boiled chestnuts and hick-ones as well as corn to make a milk that was drunk cold or hot and used in general cooking. They also used the milk in making such particular dishes as custards and pudding.

As for meat, there were deer, elk, bear, and moose. Among smaller animals providing meat for the pot were hares and rabbits found almost everywhere. Birds were also found, ducks, geese, curlews, plover, sandpipers and snipe. Also-quail, pheasant, turkey, and many others.

Fish was also a large part of the diet, especially along the Eastern seaboard. Lobsters, cod, sturgeon, mackeral and flounder were among some of the seafood available.

Scandals? Way back then? Sure! Only Rona Barret wasn't there to report them. Edward Hyde, also known as Lord Cornbury, was New York's first Governor, appointed in 1702 by Queen Anne. It has been said that he was the most disliked of all New York's Governors. Besides spending the people's tax money on himself, he was fond of masquerading in women's clothing. He was frequently seen in the evening in this costume, strolling about on the ramparts of the fort, with a fan in his hand. A portrait of him in this dress hangs in England.

Could you picture this man in an evening gown?

Ever wonder how all the beautiful trees in Flushing got there? Mother nature couldn't do it all herself. So the Parsons family helped. They were the Johnny Appleseeds of colonial times. Generations of that family ordered trees from all over Europe and planted them all along the streets of Flushing.

One of Flushing's more memorable trees

An Indian squaw's kitchen was not like your mother's. In colonial days, the Indians cooked food by three different methods: broiling, roasting, and boiling. Lacking modern implements, the women used earth ovens. Wrapping raw meat in leaves, they placed it in a hole filled with hot stones and covered it with dirt until it was cooked.

A part of Whitestone for some time bore the name of Cookie Hill. The village was first called Clintonville, but in 1854, when the post office was established, the old name Whitestone was restored.

Tews Neck was later known as Stratton Port. Its present name of College Point owes its origin to the fact that Saint Pauls College was established there by Dr. Muhlenberg in 1846.

Flushing H.S. pictured in lower left corner with another dedication — to the WW I soldiers

The Mitchell-Perry House located on the corner of Bayside Avenue and Union Street

Pony Express? Almost. In colonial times, there were no post offices on Long Island. However, a Scotchman named Dunbar took it upon himself to ride his horse once every two weeks, through the Island with mail. The day on which he was due at any place was called "post day". Half the village would assemble at the Inn to meet him. On his long and lonesome journeys Mr. Dunbar would read the letters to amuse himself. People unwilling to have their letters read, solved the problem by writing in code.

To the Dutch we are indebted to forever for Santa Claus and the custom of hanging up stockings at Christmas time.

New Years Day was celebrated with noise and hospitality. A group of men would assemble before the door of a neighbor and salute him with the discharge of guns. The saluted person would then invite his friends into his home for refreshments. Together they would go from home to home until all the men of a neighborhood were there. This motley gathering then proceeded to pass the day competing in athletic activities and target shooting.

The Quaker Meeting House

One of Flushing's remaining colonial houses

Flushing has come a long way since the Matinecock Indians sold it to the Dutch at a rate of fifty acres per axe.

Our forefathers may seem backwards today, but none the less, they were courageous colonists who roughed it out in settling the New World.

The first few decades of Flushing's existence were hectic. The spring of 1645 saw an end of the Indian wars that for five years had harassed the colonists. During these years, they had scarcely six months of peace. A day of Thanksgiving was proclaimed and was observed with great joy on the sixth of September.

The colonists were later troubled with problems of Dutch rule and finally, English domination.

Children's Theatre

Children's Theatre is a class designed for aspiring actors and actresses. During the course of the term, one class, instructed by Mrs. Lois Miller, learned to do pantomime, theatre games, and techniques. The purpose of the course is to perform children's plays in the neighborhood public schools for the benefit of the children who attend them. It also provides theatrical experience.

Sing '76

Senior Sing

The curtain rose on Flushing's third annual SING on the nights of March 12th and 13th, revealing weeks of hard work and dedication on the parts of participating students

Focusing on the "bicentennial" theme, this topic served a double purpose. It is appropriate subject matter for this year, and it was hoped that SING would receive Federal funding being donated to Bicentennial oriented projects.

Each SING (a student written, directed, and staged musical-comedy skit) reflected the Bicentennial theme with uniqueness. Titles chosen for respective SINGs included — How The Liberty Bell Was Cracked, Seniors: The First American Beauty Contest; Juniors

Junior Sing

Sophomore Sing

To help fund SING, buttons and T-shirts were sold. At 60¢ and $3.00 the sales supplemented the plummeting budget.

The idea of participating in Inter-Sing was rejected by Flushing's SING Commission after much deliberation. Although Inter-Sing is a highly presumptuous one, we decided to decline joining, due to problems that arose during last year's production.

Senior Trip Is A Real _____?

Koow'

Calendars will definitely be marked off with special notations and treasurable memories of the days of January 9, 10, and 11, 1976, for all those who went on the Senior Trip to Rocking Horse Dude Ranch in Highland, New York.

Rocking Horse is considered New York's most complete resort ranch. For as soon as everyone anxiously checked into their rooms, jumped all over their beds, unpacked, ran through the halls finding their friends, activities had already begun. Many were either eager to take a before dinner swim or simply look over the entire ranch and plan out the night's activities.

To co-ordinate activities were our chaperones Mrs. Miller, Mr. Algozer and Mr. Erdal, along with their husbands and wives, who did a fantastic job. Most of the time we were free to do our own thing but sometimes they popped up and made a few restrictions.

Evening activities refused to end till sunrise, and even that didn't stop anything. It just reminded everyone when breakfast (yeach) would be served. Both Friday and Saturday nights a band performed, along with a comedian on Saturday. Many either enjoyed hustling all night, or they did their own partying. Day activities consisted of horseback riding, tobogganing, skiing and snowmobiling in which many took full advantage. Even after being weary-eyed from being up for more than 48 hours straight.

Everyone admitted they had an outrageous time, and as Andy Katz would put it, "it was QUITE G."

Everyday seventh period the door to room 140 was unlocked, and typewriters started clicking, voices started bantering, and editors started working. This is THE FORUM office, swarming with action, and always chaotic.

THE FORUM, a prize winning publication in high school journalism, had a staff who worked diligently for the paper's continued success. Each editor was thoroughly dedicated, designing innovative lay-outs, and writing distinctive copy.

THE FORUM suffered miserably because of the monetary crisis, and was forced to economize drastically in order to keep the paper alive. Mrs. Daisy Lains faculty advisor, guided the staff in fund raising projects, using weekly cake sales as a prime tool.

Consultative Council

Designed to give students a chance to voice their opinions on pertinent school issues, the Consultative Council confers with Mr. Kaye steadily.

Interested students offer their views on how to deal with school problems such as vandalism and security, and attempt to devise remedies for the apparent apathy in Flushing High School.

Key Club

Members of Flushing High School's Key Club devote their time and energy to help their school and community. Under the supervision of Mr. Milton Gordon, the members plan, during weekly meetings, such activities as car washes and booksales. The money which is obtained from such fund raising events is donated to some worthwhile cause, one of which is sending an under privileged child to camp. In addition, volunteers from the club act as teacher aides and tutors in a neighborhood school.

Flushing's Math Team originated last year when a group of arithmetic whizzes joined forces to form a club which competes with other schools regularly.

Both the junior and senior teams are coached by Mr. Edwin Cohen. The practice sessions consist of the groups being presented with a difficult problem and a prescribed amount of time to work it out before Mr. Cohen provides a step by step solution.

International Thespian Society

Students with a keen interest in theatrics formulate the International Thespian Society.

The members of the club also belong to the National Thespian Society. To obtain admission to this specialized group, one must have attained a certain number of credits by participating in stage productions at Flushing High School. ARISTA

Admission to Arista is granted in the senior year when a student has accumulated an 88% average and twenty-five service credits for three terms. Advisor Mrs. Suzanne Kallich says, "The group can be as active as the members wish to make it." She urges them to plan outings and book guest speakers to increase the relevancy of the organization.

Service League

Flushing's Service League, a vital organization, strives to coordinate motivated students in serving the school. It also works to delegate service credits fairly to those deserving pupils.

As a result of the departure of Miss Jessica Sherer, Mrs. Suzanne Kallich has taken over the position of faculty advisor. Mrs. Kallich assisted the Service League Officers in the demanding task of providing the Awards Committee with information on those students who were potential candidates for service awards.

Organizing group excursions on a regular basis is a primary function of the Ski Club, advised by Miss Lorraine Bier

The club is enjoying increased participation this year, as avid ski enthusiasts retreat to room 265, Wednesdays the eighth period. In addition to the trips to the ski lodges, the club provides lessons on proper skiing technique, and first aid instruction. The advice the club affords is much appreciated, and is put to practical use as Flushingites trudge through the snow, red-faced and breathless, and glide down the slopes.

International Club

Striving for brotherhood and linkage between various ethnic groups, the International Club is one of the busiest groups in school.

Advised by Mrs. Eumelia Pretel, the club meets steadily Fridays the fourth and tenth periods. During the meetings there is an exchange of ideas, cultures and languages between the members. The club's most ambitious attempt is the International Show, where the club members perform musical numbers, and dress in the individually unique costumes characteristic of their country.

Under the direction of Mr. Bert Haber, the dynamic sounds of trumpets, trombones, flutes, clarinets and other assorted instruments are vividly heard.

The bands play selections at the annual Spring Concert, and "toots" the Red Devils on at the home games.

Experience is necessary to perform with the Senior Band; and this polish is most often attained by participating in either the intermediate band if they had a prerequisite of either elementary band, or two years of Junior High School Band.

Devoted to those students interested in learning a musical instrument, the Elementary Band class is seeking more applicants

Orchestra

Strongly "instrumental" to the musical life at Flushing High School, the orchestra rehearses daily, sixth period, in room B25.

Describing the musicians as "young but enthusiastic", Mr. Philip Rappaport conducts the ensemble. Studying both classical and contemporary forms of music, the orchestra performs the two types at the annual Spring Concert.

Mixed Chorus

Alto, sopranos, tenors and basses assimilate to form The Mixed Chorus. Guided by Dr. Diane Battipaglia, the group meets daily the seventh period, to plan a sequence of musical pieces for the Spring Concert.

Previous singing experience is not necessary to become a member of the chorus. Only attraction for singing and a desire to strengthen vocal skills are needed. An important function of The Mixed Chorus is to serve as a sort of "training center" for the All City Chorus.

Senior Council

Always overflowing with people, and emitting pandemonium, room 224 housed the Senior Council. Advised by Mr. Jerry Algozer, the Senior class sponsored numerous events which interested the student body.

The list of activities included: the cake sale held on parent-teacher night which grossed a sum of sixty dollars; the widely attended Senior weekend at the Rocking Horse Dude Ranch; and a slew of other events which made this year memorable for the class of '76.

Student Organization

The S.O., always one of the busiest groups in Flushing High School, has further increased their activities, sponsoring events interesting the student body.

Mr. Michael Manson, the new advisor, has guided officers Virginia Duran, George Burrill, Steven Koller, and Anna Acosta, in various fiscal projects. Activities coordinated include a Marx Brothers' film festival, rock concert, and the sale of pretzels and S.O. cards.

SPORTS

The Ultimate Goal

[illegible]

When the Red Devils took the field for their first game of the 1975 season against the Wingate Generals, many of the followers were optimistic that the very obscure football team would rise from oblivion and achieve their first winning season since 1962. Even a slight improvement like scoring a touchdown would impress the Flushing fans as well as the local media.

In August, new head coach Jim Maugeri, assisted by Al Merz and Dan Nizich, took 24 of his players to Camp Tarigo in upstate New York for a week of special training and preparation. "He used to wake us at 5:30 in the morning," said guard Stuart Levy. The week of training camp also appeared to give this young team extra confidence as they outplayed some "A" division teams in pre-scrimmages. Many observers speculated that if Flushing could hold their own against these teams, they would be very competitive in the "B" division.

When the Red Devils beat Wingate in their season opener, Flushing had its first win and score in two years. Then Flushing reeled off three consecutive shutouts against Brandeis, Richman and Monroe. A 24-12 victory against Lehman clinched a playoff spot for the Devils.

Many outstanding players contributed to the Red Devil's success. Running back Juan "Snooky" Pacheco finished the season with 68 points, placing him second among Queens High School players in scoring.

Quarterback Matt Cannella led the Devil's offensive attack with strong passing and a fine running game. Cannella and his backs can depend upon superb blocking by tackles Wendell Waldron and Teddie Purdie, and center Tony Rico. These linemen are all well over six feet and weigh around 230 pounds and also contribute on defense. The members of the front four linebackers are Andy Kirshner, Byron Washington, Lance Wilson, and Ricky Timmons. Linebackers Marc Gallett, Doug Pazmino and Jon Latimar are hard hitting defensemen. Latimar displays his versatility by playing the offensive backfield as a runner or as the backup quarterback. The secondary is led by Kelvin Miller, who was having a fine game against Madison for the championship until he separated his shoulder late in the third quarter.

The championship game was played on November 22 at Midwood H.S. field. Early in the final quarter, Flushing was trailing 16-6, their touchdown being scored by the defense as Marc Gallet recovered a Madison fumble in the end zone. The potent Devil's running game was not a factor through the first three quarters. When Flushing got the ball in the final period, coach Maugen decided that he could break through the Madison defense with some effective passing. Cannella hit Juan Pacheco on numerous occasions and then spotted receiver Joe Avigilano, who made a fine move around his defender, open in the end zone for six points. Cannella again hit Avigilano for the conversion to narrow the gap. After Flushing's defense thwarted Madison on fourth and inches to go, the Devils had a chance to gain the lead. Sticking with the passing game, Flushing moved downfield and scored when Cannella found his hot target Avigilano for what proved to be the winning touchdown.

A few hearts stopped for awhile when Madison scored an apparent touchdown on a 69 yard screen pass. But the play was called back due to a Clipping penalty. Moments later a Madison pass was intercepted by Joe Avigilano with seconds remaining to ice the game — an exciting culmination that led to Flushing's ultimate goal.

Cheerleaders

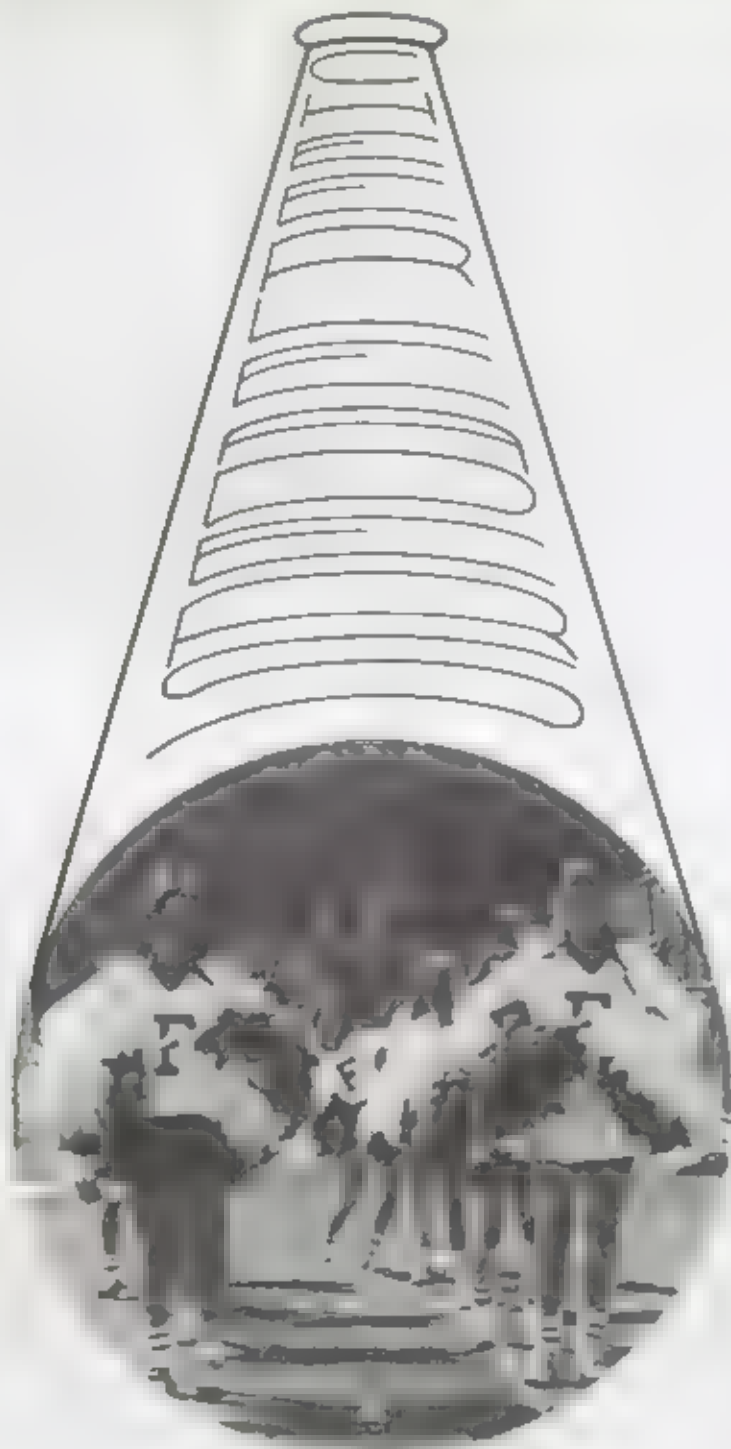

Rain or shine, win or lose, there is no other group of girls as dedicated to their Football and Basketball teams as the Flushing cheerleaders. By their energetic cheers and cries for success and spirit, they prove themselves to be the "Soul-Supporting" group of the school.

One thing to consider, is not all girls who try out for cheerleading have the ability to jump, kick or do a split and cartwheel, which are a necessity for all cheerleaders. So from that moment on, several hours a week are spent practicing to reach the ultimate goal of perfection. Three two hour practices are held during the summer in order to teach 110 cheers. Because of budget cuts, uniforms and transportation to and from games are not provided. This is not too discouraging because sometimes a "True" cheerleader comes down with a bad case of "Cheerleaderitis". This isn't too serious. It just means she can't walk across the street without snapping her fingers, jumping up in the air, and yelling at the top of her lungs.

Through home games or away, sore throats and stiff muscles, victories and defeats, the fun (and lasting friendships) are all part of the satisfaction and dedication that go along with cheerleading.

Girl's Leaders Club

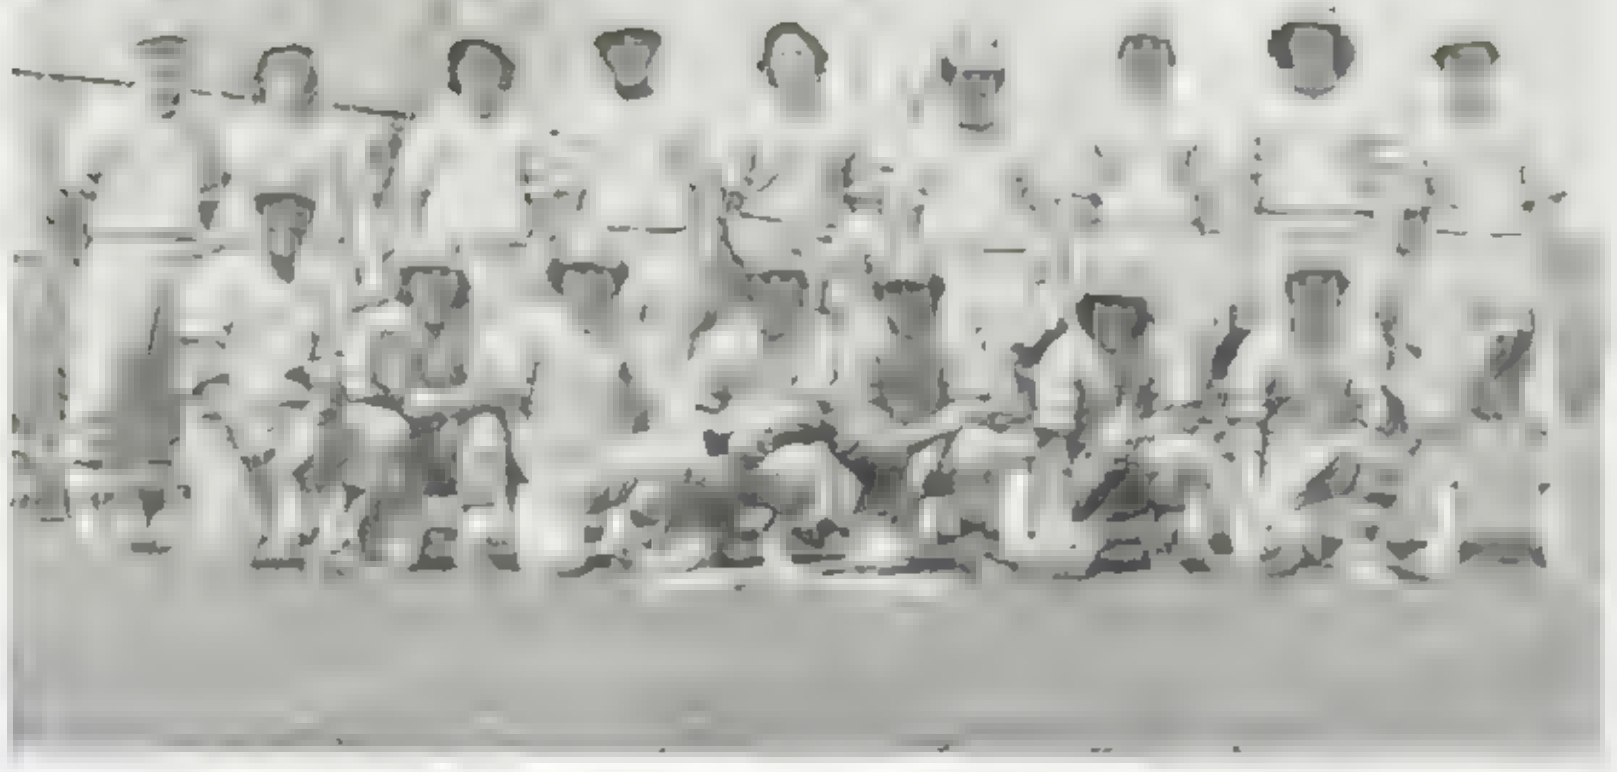

Athletic girls who are potential Physical Education majors, form the Leaders Club, which meets Wednesdays, seventh period in the new girl's gym.

Advised by Mrs. Virginia Chan, the girls exercise their skills in assisting their gym teachers and helping their peers. The club busily formulated activities this year, one of which was a Christmas party.

Highlighting the Leaders Club is the opportunity to participate in organized sporting events with girls from other schools. Unfortunately, the joy of socializing with other Leaders at the annual City weekend was terminated due to a lack of funds arising from the budget crisis.

The Flushing High Baseball Team with hard work and determination took a respectable 3rd place seasonal finish.

"The Baseball Team had much motivation and they had the hitting power when it was needed in crucial games," commented coach George Diehl. Wayne Smith, Ross Terrant, and James Loeb were some members of the team who gave that all important clutch hitting which coach Diehl talked about. The team ended the season with a record of 9 wins and 6 losses, which was a satisfying effort assembled by the team.

"Pitching was superb, led by Nick DePierro with a 3-1 win-Loss record compiling a 1.80 E.R.A.," commented the coach. Coach Diehl also said that the team has a good foundation for next season, with eight of the players returning to the squad.

The Flushing Swim Team, coached by Mr. Shevlin, had a disappointing season of 0 wins, 5 losses, and 1 tie, but the losing record doesn't tell the whole story. As coach James Shevlin explains, "The team learned a lot, most of the swimmers were freshman and sophomores and they needed the season for learning." Alex Perillo, a back stroke swimmer; Javier Montalvo, a breast stroke swimmer; and Adriano Bortolin, a free style swimmer — all gave a good seasonal showing according to coach Shevlin. Next year's team should look much better because many of the team swimmers will be returning with that all important ingredient, experience

"It has been a building year for us, but it definitely looks promising for next year," commented Mr. Dom Montalbano, coach of the Bowling Team

Although the team ended its season on a disappointing note, compiling a 2-8 win-loss record, Flushing bowlers displayed winning attitude in two matches against Forest Hills High School

The Bowling Team also housed various players of considerable talent, Mike Malloy, Brian Gaines, Brian Wallach, Stan Mentryka and Alan Budin, who represented Flushing High School at the interboro championships

Mr. Montalbano cites "concentration" as the single most important quality a bowler must strive to attain. Three of the top team members will return again to play next year, and Mr. Montalbano thinks that this fact will be a key for Flushing to become a top contender next year

The 1975 edition of the Flushing High School Handball Team compiled a record of two wins and five losses. However, the season was not a disappointing one by any means as James McFarlane emerged as the interscholastic's city-wide champion. Undefeated during the regular season, the handball superstar is considered unbeatable by first-year-coach Gerald Muratore.

"Mc Farlane's participation has spirited a super effort by the rest of the team as well," explained the coach. James Chin and Steven Axel performed superbly in doubles competition. Tom Corredine, Tom Zuppari, Desi Contreras, Jeff Wright, and Ramon Hernandez round out the squad.

"The big improvement has been on defense, team, and individual," commented Coach Mr. Bill Jensen. "We are working together as a unit, and the dividends are being shown by the winning streak." Mr. Jensen then dug into a problem — the no spectators allowed rule, due to lack of supervision. "It's like playing in a vacuum; it's an artificial type of setup," he stated.

The stars have been senior guard Eloya "Tiny" Green, and junior center Brian "Sugar Bear" Spencer, averaging 23 and 14 points, respectively. The other starters are forwards, David Dorfman and Mike Leff, center Joe White, and guard Bernard Warren, all seniors. Other members include Ronnie Schreiber, Franklin Anderson, Stanley Moorer, Neal Heller, Al Patterson and Gerard Harris.

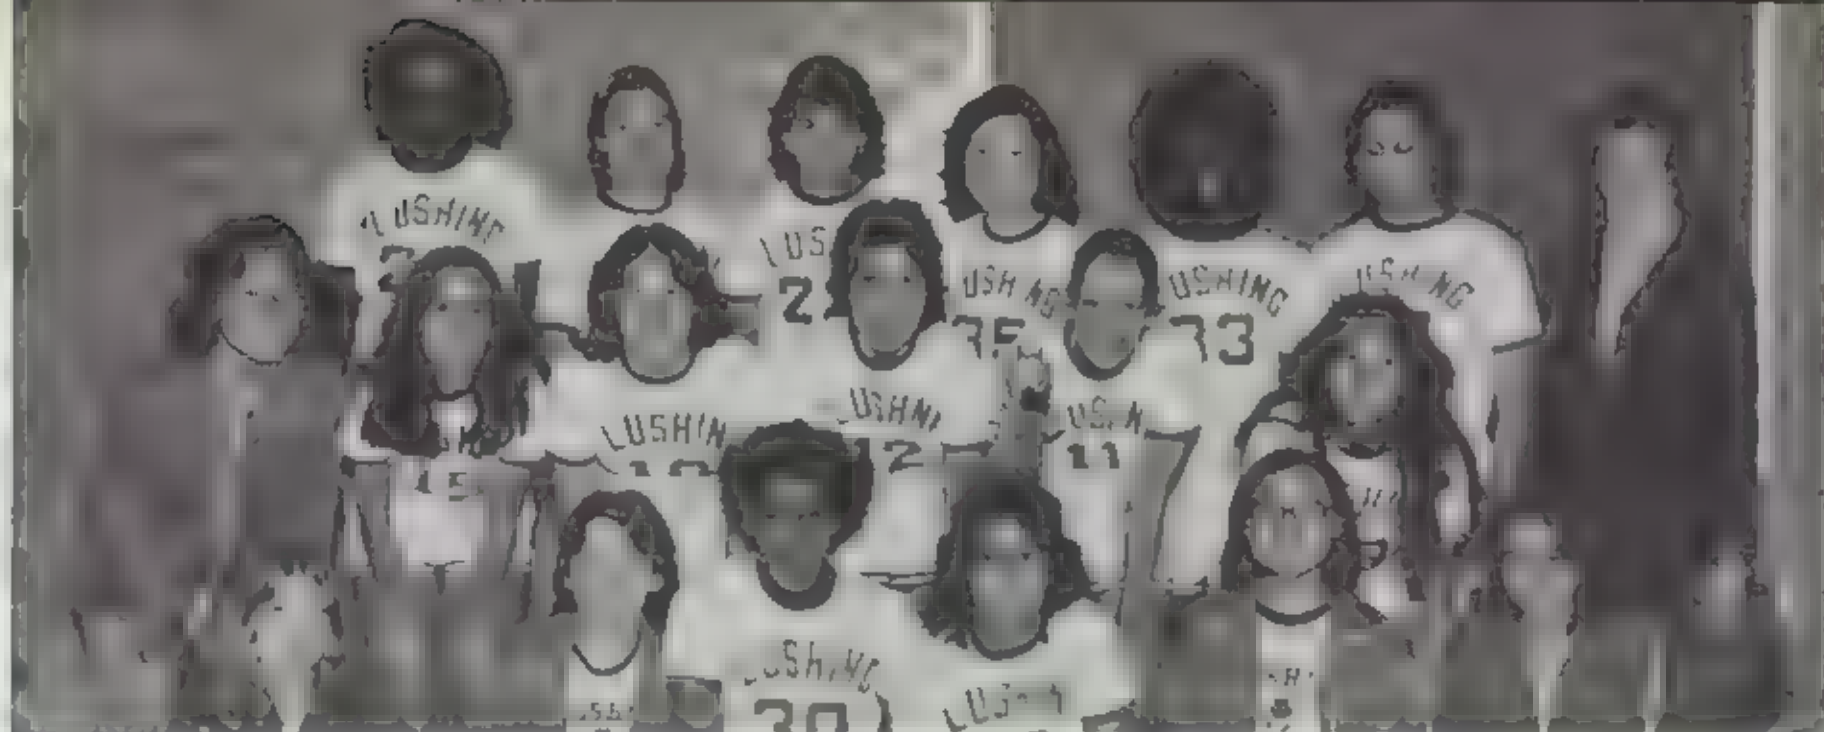

"We are the best in the world," says Ronnie Schreiber. "We are no longer a team that can be taken lightly."

Girls Basketball Hopes To Repeat Last Season

After losing 3 of the 5 starters of last year's team, the overall objective of the Flushing High School's Girls Basketball Team this year was to rebuild. With young players and work as a team rather than individual high scoring.

Coach Lorraine Ber remarked "this year our players will gain confidence and experience that will play a vital part in a winning season for next year."

Last year marked the team's most successful venture ever. With an impressive 15-1 record, the girls reached the city finals. After gaining impressive victories in the quarter and semi-finals and becoming Queens champs. Losing to Julia Richman was disappointing, but every team member realized how much had been accomplished.

This year's team possessed much spirit and love of the game of basketball. They were determined and always willing to learn from their mistakes.

"Our team was headed for an undefeated season when Joe Pelczar, our team co-captain broke his foot," commented Coach Corry.

"The track team had many outstanding players this season," said Mr. Corry. Some of the outstanding performers were: Joe Pelczar, Frank King, and Miguel Espinal.

Coach Corry expects Bob Lasak, Steve Coppola, and Carlos Ron to be among the team leaders next year.

When the Flushing High School Track Team completed its outdoor season, they had compiled a 3-2 win-loss record.

Many team members will contend that a let down occurred when team captain Joe Pelczar broke his foot after a loss to Bayside. Pelczar, who was undefeated in individual competition for the past two years, was forced to sit out the remainder of the cross-country season.

"The team has performed commendably this year", commented coach Daniel Corry, who is very pleased with all the team members. Phil Ordonez, Frankie King, Jose Nunez, Robert Lasak, Carlos Ron, Miguel Espinal, Matt Carbone, Steve Capila and Ben Young comprise the remainder of the team.

Girls Track Makes A Fine Effort

"The girl's on the track team showed a willingness to learn the game and to improve their faults," commented coach Lorraine Bier. Linda Otani and Amanda Field were track members who showed determination in the sport.

"The Track Team met stiff competition in the Queens Division and cold weather conditions also added extra difficulties to the team's overall play," said coach Bier.

The girls on the team competed in such events as the long jump, shot-put, and hurdles. "We made a fine effort to win and the girls also gained much valuable experience from the track season" stated coach Lorraine Bier.

"The volleyball team worked hard and showed enthusiasm for the game," commented coach Wendy Trontz.

The team's record was disappointing, but the team's finish doesn't show some of the fine play of the team members.

"The competition in Queens North Division is very tough, if the team were in a weaker division instead of a really strong one, their record would be much better," analyzed Mrs. Trontz. Also, the team lost many of the games by one or two points and this shows that the team was playing well.

The volleyball team showed good teamwork this season. The players relied on each other, and showed passing and setting the ball which are two very important parts of a volleyball match. "The team was unable to cope with extreme pressure but next season's team should handle it because of this year's experience."

Soccer Strives On Determination

"The Soccer Team had many inexperienced players who learned the fundamentals of soccer by playing the game this season," explained Mr. Tom Mullen, coach of Flushing's Soccer Team. Coach Mullen was optimistic about his team compiling a respectable record this year. The members of the squad worked hard during training and gave it their best when the actual season began. Although they did not make the playoffs, the players were not disappointed with their record of 6 wins and 8 losses.

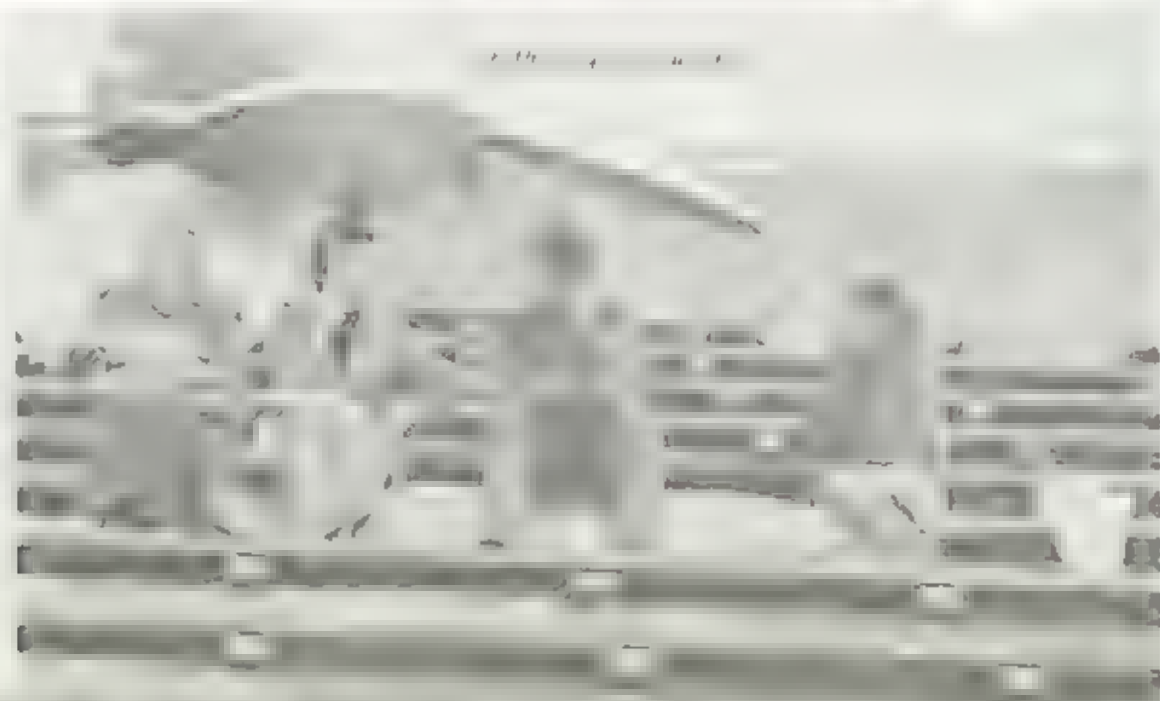

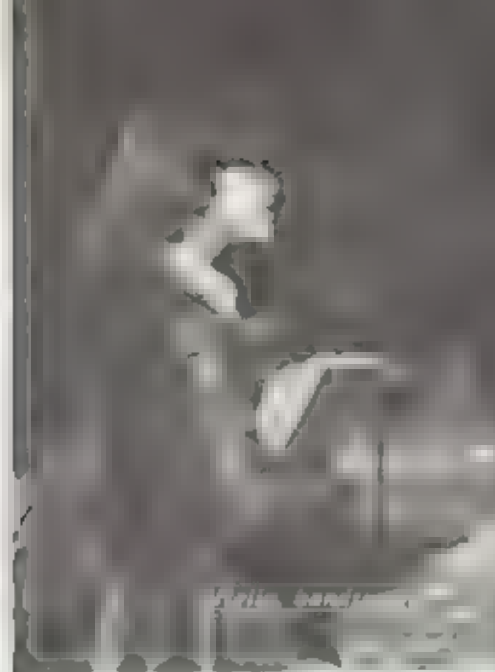

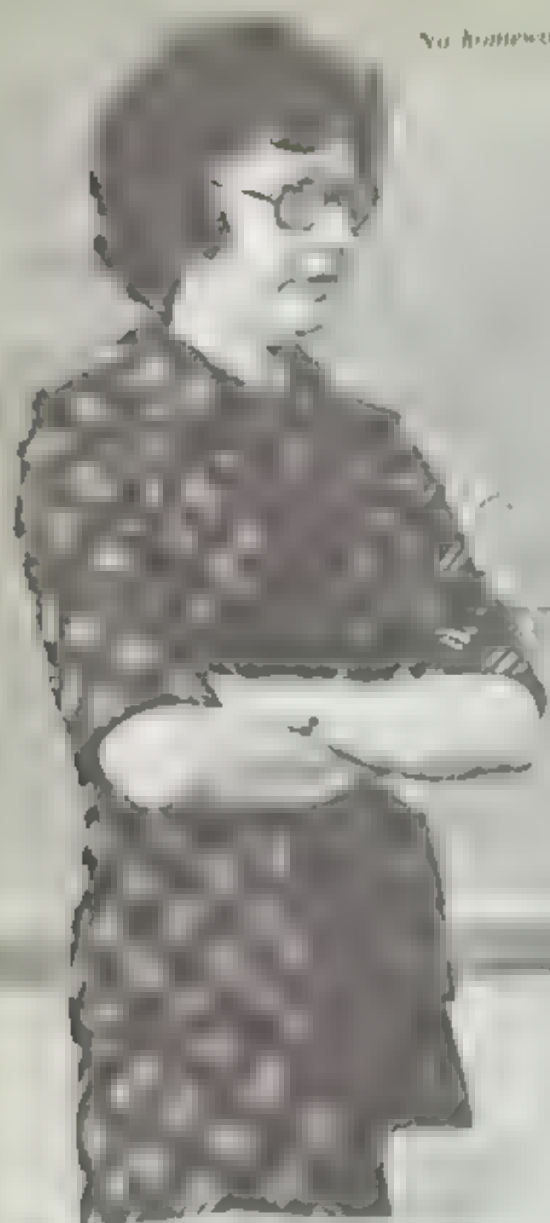

Even though the players weren't experienced this season, they showed a great deal of determination, and a desire to learn the game. "Once you have the determination and players who like and want to learn it, the rest comes with practice," asserted coach Mullen.

ARE COMING

Burchette

*A Personal Experience .
Which Applies to Everyone*

There comes a time,
In the life of every man,
When he must stand up for his rights,
And do what he can.

This school is fairly just,
Yes, things run pretty well,
Except for a certain misguided teacher,
And it is of her exploits I will tell

The year is nineteen-seventy-six,
The classroom 008,
The students enter in full expectation
Of a term of work and debate

Then enter Ms. _____,
Her name shall remain unknown,
This is so that from her "wonderful" classroom
I will not be thrown.

How different can this woman be?
Let me try to explain.
Needless to say, since I'm writing this poem,
That to us she is a pain

A murderess in her former life,
She killed her husband . . . a loving wife
Yes, she believes in Reincarnation,
And in your inner soul's elevation
She lived many lives before,
And hopes to live many more

Her real problem, though, is her making of grades
(The logic of which just simply evades
My friends and myself, we can't figure it out,
Except that everyone gets 80 or thereabout)

Whether you do extra work or no work at all,
80's are given to one and to all
The reasons she gives for the way she marks,
Leaves most of us completely in the dark
"Tests don't count" says she quote I,
My friends that statement is a downright lie!

It's things like these which get her students upset,
So I'm writing this poem so that people won't forget
That not everyone will take all that happens lying down.
I'm sure she knows who she is, and that this poem will be found

If this teacher reminds you of someone you know,
Then please do something, don't just let it go,
For a man who does nothing, really has no claim,
And a student who doesn't stand up for his rights,
Has no right to complain

Sung to the tune of
"Ah Yes, I Remember It Well"

It was three years
Or was it four
They've all been great
Wish there were more
Ah, yes we remember it well

The forum staff
Wrote news each day
But; they sold food
Well, anyway
Ah yes, we remember it well

We had a winning streak
On Flushing Football team
They won the championship
Which was their dream

The senior trip
Was so much fun
Wish we could have Another one
Ah yes, I remember it well

The toilet bowls
Rose everyday
The food was great
Mine flew away
Ah yes, I remember it well

The S.O. show came 'round
And there was Sing again
We never realized
We neared the end

Who ever thought
The time would come
To say goodbye to Everyone
Ah yes, We'll remember it well

Dear Forum Staff — you were great to work with, I'll never forget you — One day, Gell, I'll have my articles in on time with a headline — it's 3 o'clock people — Where's Krinitz? (Krinitz — what's a Krinitz?) — Remember the Krinitz Dictionary — Yea Cocce — Down with multi-media and their lousy cookies — We should have had a big bathroom, so we wouldn't have to fog up our eyes — A bigger room for Barry to have a temper tantrum, Daisy to play with her orange and enough space for 20 typewriters, a closet for our coats, pencils with erasers, and lots of nonerasable typing paper — Johnny Carson and 10 o'clock news have long been over, Bonnie — Bonnie, you've been absolutely terrific — thanks — JoAnn — you were great, you worked so hard and did a fantastic job — Linda Otaniwicz — you're unbelievable, I hope that someday, everyone appreciates you for the truly beautiful person you are and always will be — See you next intercession — Tam you're a dear, sweet friend — I love you — Mitch, Andy, David, Gell you're definitely strange — Cindy, Cindy and Harold

Mr. DeMeo — "I said raise your right hand."

Mr. Rappaport — "Loosen your bows."

Mrs. Rogers — "Stand up, sit down."

Belladonna's a Junior

I shouldn't feel I've come out dry
Three years gone, since I walked through your door
and with these memories by the shore
I feel a tear in my eye start to fall
As I think of your big, familiar hall

But for now I'll look back to the time that we met:

It felt strange on unfamiliar ground
I went in at 12 and came out at 3
I went to the bathroom and came out alive
Filled with hatred, fright and with fear
I made it through my Sophomore year

Then we grew friendly, a castle to roam
F.H.S. seemed like my second home

I didn't want the year to come to an end
The work grew harder, with time and cheer
Out with my friends, I overlooked them
But I survived my Junior days

Now Senior year, seemed short but sweet
SAT's to take, college deadlines to meet
It suddenly hit me, I'll soon be gone for good
I won't cry, Yes I will, as I should

Goodbye Flushing High School, you've been more than a friend:

I know I will miss you: on that I can depend
So long as computer report cards, my quizzes and sections

No lockers and false alarms, no security and protection
No the Gargoyls, the Forum, SING

and the rest
No the murals, the gargoyles and the Friday
math tests

I'm leaving behind me a school where there's wrong and right

There's hatred and love, there's black and there's white

But try not to worry, those who remain

Just don't let the pressures drive you insane

Enjoy while you can, with no questions asked

And this I can say: to the best of my knowledge
